Church Site for Religious Bodies in

Kaiulani Tract. The Diocesan Magazine says: short time ago a large tract of land in Kalihi valley was purchased by Mr. W. C. Achi, and named by him the "Kaiuiani" tract. In laying this out in building lots he has reserved a considerable area for a park, and set apart a site for a Church for more than one religious body. The lot selected to be conveyed to the anglican Church is in a central position on what will be the main road. Now, who will be stirred up to emulate the example of Mr. W. C. Achi by a donation towards an endow-ment for a clergyman, or towards a fund for building a church in memory of the Princess whose name the suburb will bear?

Steamer Athenian In From Manila.

Vessels Out -- Hongkong Maru Sails.

Bunting was displayed on all the vessels in port yesterday in honor of the day and there was a general ces. Opera will be repeated.

The cosy little theater was taxed to sation of work alongshore. Down at its utmost capacity; chairs were in-Pacific Mail wharf, owing to the slow troduced wherever possible, and evwork on board by the Hongkong Ma- ery point of vantage seized upon ru's crew, that liner did not sail for San Francisco until quite late at night. Her berth was taken by the United States animal transport Athenian, from Manila, which will load stock immediately and return. The Athenian encountered some very rough weather on the way over, which occasioned her long passage. The lumber chooner Ethel Zane and bark B. P. Cheney sailed for the Const, where they will load again for Island ports: the B. P. Cheney returning with coal from Puget Sound. During the month of December forty-nine salling vessels and twenty-eight steamships from forign ports arrived off this harbor, being one of the largest month's business for some years. The month of January will witness another big in-flux of foreign steam and sailing craft for the season's sugar crop; and The steamer Claudine arrived yes for the season's sugar crop; and the terday morning with a few head of Dilots and harbor officials, already overtasked, will have to work harder than ever.

The schooner Wm. H. Smith and barkenine Klikitat are anchored off Allen

Mor! Tuf 's Galways.

The Manna Loa lays off in the stream and will probably get away for Kona and Kau ports on Friday. On board the officers and crew are as contented as conditions will allow, and the popuar purser, J. Morton Tuft, is putting in the time cultivating a luxuriant growth of whiskers, which before quarantine is over will be quite a la loulanger and make him handsomer than ever. The Mauna Loa will dis-charge her cargo of sugar into tise park Alden Besse this morning.

Ship Signalling at Sea.

During the recent naval maneuvers n new form of electro-magnetic relay airalty by Mr. H. W. Sullivan of Great Winchester street, was tried on board the Juno cruiser, in connection with Mr. Marconi's experiments, with very atisfactory results, being found to be highly sensitive and remarkably free from self-induction as compared with other known types of relay. Mr. Sullivan has since introduced into his instrument certain improvements which would seem likely to play an import ant part in the evolution of wireless telegraphy both on land and sea. Among these is an ingenious device for determining and indicating the distance between any two ships seeking to communicate with each other, while other refinements have the effect of increasing the signaling distance and the speed at which signals can be received. The instrument, which is also suited to the requirements of ordinary telegraphic work, is said to be so sensitive that it will respond to a current of even less than one-tenth of a milliampere, and what is of special importance on board ship—it is unaffected by severe mechanical vibration. It is worth noting that even before wireless telegraphy became an object of public interest in this country the Admiralty realized its practical possibilities, and in experiments they initiated gave special attention to the subject of the relay, which it was recognized would prove an all-important factor in uccessful working.

A Perfect Naval School-Ship.

What is described as being a perfect naval school-ship is at present on a cruise around the world, and was last at Hongkong. She is the Presidente Sarmiento, of the Argentine Republic. Built at Messrs. Laird & Co.'s yard, Birkenhead, in 1897, her hull is of modern type, but for drill purposes she is fitted as an auxiliary, being full-rigged on the three masts, and engined to 2,000 i.h.p. with 14 knots speed. Her propeller has feathering blades, a patent which has given every satisfaction. The vessel's displacement is 2,850 tons. The crew musters 350 all told, and is composed of 14 commissioned officers and engineers, 40 midshipmen, 120 apprentice boys, a large number of non commissioned of-ficers, 100 first-class A.B.'s, besides stokers and several on the civil list. She was commissioned on June 29 last year, and on January 12 left Buenos Ayres for a cruise around the world The armament, with the exception of four 4.7-inch Armstrong guns, is irreg-ular, every approved type of gun being carried for the completer instrucdepartment forgotten, the vessel hav-ing three tubes and all the latest contrivances. Each commissioned officer regularly teaches the particular branch he is most proficient in, the classes in-cluding subjects in artillery, fortifica-vertain. Civillens are also carried the anody of lenguages, principally inglish and French, photography, a lag, bonding and mosts, the last are eng laught for a skilled ploudst and supplied.

the "standing-room" conlingent. The audience was in holiday humor and augh followed laugh, plaudits echoed plaudits, and the opera went through with a vim. There is a large cast in "Erminie." and amld so many excellent characterizations comparison would be invidious. Miss Stanton, in dainty Pompadour costume, captured all hearts as Ermi-nia. From her first solo, "When Love la Young," she was thoroughly touch with the crowded house. I Miss Andrews, as Gavotte, Miss Leekly, as the handsome Captain Delaunay, and Miss McNelli were all excellent. Kunkel and Henderson, of course, in the atrical parlance, "hogged the piece," but Mr. Rockwell, as the antiquated beau, with Messrs, Hallam, Rogers, Joel and Van Dyne, were good sup-porters. Henderson's ludicrous actions and make-up broke up the audience repeatedly, and Kunkel, as the false Viscount, gave a clever readering. Misses Howard and Leicester, with Mr. Masfin, were capable in their smaller roles.
